American sign language is a great way to further express the lyrics in the Refrain of “Tiny Little Miracles.”

Tiny (small): The extended right thumb and index finger are held slightly spread. They are then moved slowly toward each other until they almost touch.

little: The right thumb tip is flicked off the index finger several times, as if shooting marbles, although the movement is not so pronounced.

miracles (amaze): (The eyes pop open in amazement.) Both hands are held in modified “O” positions with thumb and index finger of each hand near the eyes. These fingers suddenly flick open, and the eyes simultaneously pop open wide.

stirring: The hands move in circles to show that something is mixed up. R claw hand over L, palms facing each other.

in: Move the closed fingers of the right hand into the left “C” hand.

air (sky): The hand moves in an arc to indicate the sky above.

extraordinary (amazing): (The eyes pop open in amazement.) Both hands are held in modified “O” positions with thumb and index finger of each hand near the eyes. These fingers suddenly flick open, and the eyes simultaneously pop open wide.
